

NAME: Alessandra Di Pisa
DATE OF BIRTH: 7 January 1977
NATIONALITY: American

Do it once, and make it count! Since I'm the poster child for workplace efficiency and follow-through, that is my motto. I have a keen understanding of how work works, and I know how to make things happen, which translates into excellent leadership potential. While others are still spinning their wheels, I've sped off, leaving skid marks behind me.

My best quality shines through in how independent I am. The fact that I'm an independent person who usually is able to handle things in a self-sufficient manner really draws people to me. But that's not the only thing. I'm psychologically and emotionally stable and better able than most people to tolerate even the roughest situations. I am a person with a strong will who is typically determined to follow through on difficult demands and meet important goals.

I'm self-sufficient and practical. I think that top-of-the-line products are unnecessary and excessive, and I don't indulge myself with more than I need. It's safe to say that I don't put much emphasis on how trendy or high quality my products and possessions are. I'm a firm believer in the philosophy of "less is more".

Who cares if the paint job is almond brown or eggshell white? The car for me is a solid, simple Sedan. A Toyota Camry, a Lexus, or even a Benz. Pure comfort and smooth sailing is what I desire, with as little contact with the outside world as possible. From my airtight cabin, I want to get to and from without difficulties or stress - and keep a classic, but low profile. I'm the classic successful American on my way to the mall, the movie theatre, or a charming bed and breakfast. My personality is calm cool and collected - as polished as the shine on the freshly washed hood. I don't look to be provocative and don't give anyone any trouble; I just treat my car well and expect it to return the favour. As long as it gets regular check-ups my wheels are as reliable and dependable as I am.

I am a little behind the times. Sure, I am aware of the different trends that are circulating, but I do not jump on board to join the mass of pop culture experts. I do not feel an urgency to learn all of the words to the newest hit songs, and I don't panic at the idea of waiting a few weeks to see the newest movies or buy the hottest CDs. If they are good, they'll stick around, right? I've got a life to worry about, I am too busy with my work and my social life to concern myself with what's going on behind-the-scenes in Hollywood. Although, I am aware that even though it may seem pointless to keep up with the latest trends and hottest topics, especially considering they disappear as fast as they come, it can be beneficial to increase my pop-culture knowledge in order to appreciate all that each year has to offer.