

NAME: Alessandra Di Pisa
DATE OF BIRTH: 7 November 1977
NATIONALITY: Swedish

When I'm rounding up all my friends, or just hanging out with a few of them, my beat is always fun, funky, and unique. Everything I do has my own personal touch - whether picking up a new hobby or strutting my stuff with a new fashion statement. Not everybody can make a statement with what they wear like I do. I have a vibe that accepts all kinds of people into my fold and a magnetism that keeps them loyal for years. My spirit allows me to be comfortable around pretty much anyone - even if it seems other people have different ideas or opinions.

I wear my military motifs with an air of mystique. Whether sporting the new, army greens look or going safari style, I'm all about neutrals and the messages they convey. My appreciation for counterculture shows in the way I wear my clothes. I'm not afraid to borrow some looks from the men's closet, but there's no question I'm all woman - even if I never would wear pink and frilly colours. I carry off my military look with a casual edge that reminds people there are bigger issues in the world than Starbucks being out of soymilk or the bus running a few minutes late. My style reflects the fact that I'm a thinker and I care about what's happening in both my corner of life and others'. I rather sit down for a "real" conversation in a coffee shop than listen to strangers at the next table prattle off their opinions on the latest op-ed piece in the paper. My casual style reflects solidarity to anyone suffering hardships, and that's something I'm comfortable with - expressing my social consciousness through my clothes and sometimes my food choices. Music is also an important aspect of my social life, as it's a language everyone can appreciate, regardless of culture, social standing, or education.

I'm a Scorpio, and as a water sign, I am in tune with my emotions and my intuitions. The scorpion also represents my secretive nature and my ability to emit a powerful poison when vengeful. As a bundle of contradictions, I have the ability to demonstrate both the best and worst qualities that characterise human nature. Generally, I am intense and passionate, yet stubborn and competitive. I use my intuition fear-lessly, and I have a tendency to explore the nature of existence through the study of philosophy and religion. Although it is difficult for me to trust others, whenever I finally do, the result is deep and powerful. On the downside, however, I must work hard to suppress my jealousy. My dedication, drive, and persistence will guarantee my success, and I am known and respected for my imagination and idealism.